

REES' "BROTHER" OPENS CRUSADE

John Davey Starts National Campaign Against Sparrow.

FIGHTING BAND ORGANIZED.

Elimination of Song Birds and Death to Trees Through Increase of Insects and English Pest Predicted by Ohioan, Who Views Forests as Akin to Human Race.

John Davey of Kent, O., "brother of the trees," formally launched his nation wide crusade against the pestiferous English sparrow at Dayton, O., recently in the organization of the Bird and Tree band and the adoption of the following resolutions:

Inasmuch as the preservation of our trees and all vegetation depends on the services of our native birds; and,

Whereas, The rapid disappearance of our song birds is accompanied by an alarming prevalence of disease among the trees; and,

Whereas, This decrease of numbers of our coworkers, the native birds, is due largely to the pugnacious and murderous habits of the English house sparrow; and,

We, the undersigned, do pledge ourselves to use every means to encourage the restoration and preservation of our native birds and to destroy the crow, English sparrow and all other foes of our birds to the end that vegetation may be preserved to the use of man and beast.

Predicts Song Birds' End.

Mr. Davey asserts that unless the robber sparrows are exterminated speedily the song birds will soon be driven from human habitations and will remain in the depths of the forests, leaving the insects and the sparrows a clear, treeless field in a very few years.

Mr. Davey looks upon a tree and talks of it as a living creature. An extract from his Dayton remarks gives an idea of his realization of the actual life of the tree, as follows:

"I affirm a threefold proposition:

"First.—All life is divine, for the simple reason that nothing but Divine power can produce it.

"Second.—In all the realms of life the laws of God are substantially one, with slight modifications in their application.

"Third.—The life of the tree is as real as the life of the human body, and this is seen under the microscope, where the protoplasmic activities are seen to be conducted with just as much inherent intelligence in cell building as in the human body.

"This world can never be what its Creator designed it to be until we lay aside all such conceptions as things being run by luck or chance. The normal condition of everything is health. If man, animal or plant is suffering some law has been violated.

Millennium Is Dawn of Power.

"Man (a creature in the image of God) was created to 'have dominion' over the remainder of creation, and just as soon as we learn that it is our high calling to destroy the useless or lower forms that the higher may hold sway then under sanctified human intellect the millennium will begin to dawn.

"What people see and talk about the tree—i. e., the visible part—is only secondary. The invisible portion—the roots—is the all essential consideration."

Hence Mr. Davey considers "root action" first and foremost in all his scientific work.

The Best Hour of Life

is when you do some great deed or discover some wonderful fact. This hour came to J. R. Pitt, of Rocky Mt., N. C. when he was suffering intensely, as he says "from the worst cold I ever had. I then proved to my great satisfaction, what a wonderful Cold and Cough cure Dr. King's New Discovery is. For, after taking one bottle, I was entirely cured. You can't say anything too good of a medicine like that." Its the surest and best remedy for diseased lungs, Hemorrhages, LbGrippe, Asthma, Hay Fever any throat or lung trouble. 50c. $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Severs Drug Co.

The Miserable Villain.

Low Comedian—After all these years Eggbert has at last succeeded in making a hit with the audience. Soubrette—So? How does he do it? Low Comedian—You know he has always played villain roles. Soubrette—Yes. Low Comedian—Well, in the last act of a new play the author allows him to repent and say, "I've been a miserable villain." That confession invariably brings down the house.—Boston Post.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, brick-dust or sediment in the urine, head ache, back ache, lame back, dizziness, sleeplessness, nervousness, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and better health in that organ is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. Swamp-Root corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. A trial will convince anyone.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, and don't let a dealer sell you something in place of Swamp-Root—If you do you will be disappointed.

RAWN'S DEATH IS PERPLEXING

Ira G. Rawn, president of the Monon railroad, was shot to death Tuesday night in his summer home in Winnetka, Ill. Members of his family say he was murdered by a burglar. Those who hold to the burglar theory believe Mr. Rawn may have started downstairs to meet a man supposed to be in the house, but that instead of being shot by the burglar he tripped in his nightgown and accidentally pulled the trigger of his own revolver as he was falling. A third theory, which is resented by members of the family and by subordinate officers of the Monon, was that Mr. Rawn took his own life, being prompted by worry and sleeplessness over the scandals which have developed in the last few weeks in the affairs of the Western Indiana road, of which he was a director, and of the Illinois Central, of which he was vice president in charge of operation until last fall.

MILK BOSS BY MACHINE.

Washington's Trousered Dairymaids Return to Peach Packing.

One of the model dairies in the state of Washington, located near North Yakima, has received a shipment of modern milking machines, and fifty white trousered girls are thrown out of employment.

The girls had been doing the milking for several years, having displaced Japanese, who were found to be unhygienic. Each girl wore a tight fitting pair of trousers and a short sleeved jacket to match, which garments were boiled and starched each day by the farm landruss.

Each cow is bathed in warm water and soap twice daily, combed and brushed. The floors of the dairy barn are scrubbed many times daily.

The newly acquired machines are designed to draw the milk by a pumping method, power for which is supplied by a gasoline engine. It is claimed one machine will be able to do the work of ten girls, and do it in a more hygienic way. The milking girls have donned skirts and are employed in packing peaches and pears in the irrigated orchards near by.

THE MAN WITH THE ROSE.

Bowed by the weight of summer's heat he stands And holds his nose and gazes on the ground. A tiny stream doth trickle from its snout. Occasionally coming drop by drop. Who made him dead to rapture and despair.

Stolid and stunned, a brother to the ox? Who killed the evening joy that once he knew When he did stand and squirt the dew?

To make his pretty lawn and posies grow?

Oh, mayors, aldermen and public works.

Is this the handiwork you promised us.

This tiny, fleckle and distorted stream?

How will you ever strengthen up its flow?

Touch it again with immortality; Give back the raging torrent with which we

Were wont to chase the cats and dogs away?

When will we have that often promised pump

To satisfy the parched taxpaying chump?

Oh, masters, lords and rulers of our town.

How will the future reckon with us men

And women, too, who are at best but dust

And who are growing dustier each day?

How will you answer the brute questions of

The man who stands and vainly holds the hose?

NEW GUINEA PYGMIES.

The Spear and Bow and Poisoned Arrows Their Chief Weapons.

Our knowledge of the pygmies of New Guinea shows that in habit they are nomadic, nowhere tilling the ground, but depending for their living entirely on their skill in hunting and fishing. Their chief weapon is the bow, their arrows being generally poisoned either with the famous upas or some other similar vegetable poison. In some cases a species of strychnine. They also make use of the spear and an ingenious form of spring gun which is common to numerous other forest tribes. This is formed by setting a flattened bamboo spear attached to a bent sapling, which is fastened to a trigger in such a way that it is released by the passerby stumbling against an invisible string stretched across a game track. These spears are really set for game, and to the initiated they are obvious enough, as their presence is always indicated by certain well known signs, such as a broken off twig placed in a cleft stick. In war these signs are removed, the removal being equivalent to the moving of buoys in a mined channel. The wounds inflicted by these hardened bamboo spears are necessarily serious. The mental qualities of the Negroes are extremely undeveloped, none of them being able to express a higher numerical idea than three, but all observers who have met them unite in saying that they are a merry little people, with great ideas of hospitality when their confidence has been gained and provided they have not been previously ill treated. They are not cannibals and are generally monogamous. —London Times.

LIGHTNING FLASHES.

Many Things Concerning Them That Science Cannot Fathom.

A young girl in charge of two children, sheltering under a tree on Chislehurst common, was struck by lightning and killed—one of those dreadful instances of the sort of personal touch with which lightning seems to select its victim, for, though one child is reported to have been thrown down, neither apparently was injured. There are many instances, of course, of this strange selection, due in most cases probably to some accident of clothing.

There is a well remembered case which happened some years ago at Cambridge, when three young men were walking across an open space of ground, and the middle one of the three was struck dead, while the others were untouched. The inquest showed that the young man who was killed had nails in his boots, whereas the others were wearing boating shoes.

The phenomena of thunderstorms have been the subject of much study in America. But if thunderstorms can be classified, they are still not thoroughly understood. We do not yet know what are the exact conditions which lead to a discharge of electricity in the form of a lightning flash from cloud to cloud or from cloud to earth. We cannot reproduce thunder and lightning in a laboratory. We do not know what is the origin of the electrification manifested in a storm. —London Spectator.

THE ANDORRANS.

All the Inhabitants of the Little Republic Are Related.

The inhabitants of Andorra, the little republic which is wedged in between France and Spain and which has existed since the year 782, are very proud of their blue blood and ancient lineage. In their eyes a gavage (foreigner) of any description or nationality is merely an inferior being, a sort of mushroom upstart in comparison with themselves. During 1,200 years they have continually married and intermarried to such an extent that at present all the inhabitants are practically cousins, yet, strange to say, neither their physical, mental nor moral qualities seem to have suffered. Both sexes are strong limbed, broad shouldered, bright eyed, hardy and long lived, retaining their hair and their teeth to a green old age. They are also keen witted and intelligent, alert and happy hearted, sober, industrious, hospitable and devout.

The feminine Andorran has not a vestige of coquetry about her. She is just the female pure and simple. She is a thrifty housewife, a helpmate to her husband in the most literal sense of the term—ready and able to trudge off across mountain and valley beside him with a pack of smuggled goods on her back in case of need.—Wide World Magazine.

CONSTANTINOPLE WAGING WAR ON CANINE HORDES.

Former Sultan's Superstition Cast Aside at Last.

To imagine Constantinople without its hordes of prowling street dogs is difficult, but the authorities of the Ottoman capital have started in earnest to rid the city of one of its most notorious features.

Last year a contractor offered to pay the Turkish treasury a lump sum for the privilege of clearing the city streets of dogs. What he wanted to do with them did not transpire; perhaps he expected to recoup himself by selling the skins for gloves. Anyhow his proposition met with no favor. Today the Turks would have gladly accepted his proposal, but no dog buyers were forthcoming, so they tackled the question themselves.

Detachments of policemen and sweepers armed with lassoes and wooden tongs and followed by a train of dust carts have gone forth by night and raided the unsuspecting beasts. A few were spared at the intercession of individuals who agreed to look after the dogs. The others were driven away to an unknown fate.

At the time of the Russo-Turkish war a large number of dogs were collected and put on Bulwer Island, one of the Princes Islands in the sea of Marmora, so called after a former English ambassador who once owned a country house there.

No one took care of the starving creatures, and the result was that they began to devour each other before the work of transporting the whole canine contingent was complete. Then news came of a crushing defeat of the Turks.

The sultan took it as a sign of divine wrath and hastened to sign an order for the exiles to be taken back to town. Lately they have been a greater nuisance than ever.
